A section of plank road on Ridge-wood Avenue Glen Ridge is very much out of repair, and dangerous, as parties having to pass. Lincoln Avenue on their way home at night have found out. Should the owner or owners of said property read this, and act upon it at once, he, she, or they would oblige many sufferers.

At 3 o'clock last Friday afternoon, as boat "582," Captain James Daily, of New Village, Warren County, was entering the lock on the Morris Canal, the captain, who was on the bow of the boat with his seven year old son Francis, left him for a moment to go to the stern. He had hardly turned his back to the little fellow before he fell into the water, unnoticed. As the boat was fairly in the lock when he was first missed, it was evident the child was under the boat. A line was quickly fastened to the stern of the boat, and it was pulled out of the lock. The first trace of the place where the little fellow fell was the appearance of his hat in the water. John Monagan, the lock tender, jumped into the water and went to the bottom in search of the boy. He succeeded in finding him at once, and brought the lifeless body to the surface. The father, who cannot swim, was standing on the bank, and as soon as he saw his child he jumped into the water and caught the body, and it was with difficulty that Monagan was able to support the father and child and keep above water himself until assistance arrived.

In the meantime a messenger had been sent for Dr. Bailey, who arrived in a few minutes and worked for an hour to restore life, but without success. The body was only in the water about three minutes and it is thought that the boy struck the bottom of the canal. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Keyler and was forwarded to New Village on Saturday.

Another drowning accident happened at 9 o'clock the same morning just above the incline plane, about one mile from the lock. Mary Dotzover, aged six years, and her baby sister, were playing on the tow path of the canal. The little child fell into the water and Mary went in to rescue her, the water not being very deep near the edge. As she could not raise the body she screamed for help. The little child was dead when recovered, and Mary narrowly escaped a like fate.

On Monday morning about nine o'clock a Jew, about five feet six inches high, twenty-two years of age, weighing about 150 pounds, dressed in a dark suit with a diamond pin in his cambric shirt front, appeared at the news store of Thomas L. Dancer, and to his daughter, Miss Willie Dancer, represented himself as the agent of the company, and asked for the proprietor. She informed him that he could be found at the depot, where he was waiting for a Newark train.

As the train was approaching the man accosted Mr. Dancer saying:

"The News Company wants to see you at once."

Mr. Dancer replied that this was strange, as he always went to the office on Mondays to settle his accounts. The stranger then said that they wanted him to return his library, as new ones would be issued and furnished at a reduced rate. Mr. Dancer left the man, thinking to more of the matter until he returned to his store at noon and saw his "Scissors" shelves empty. Inquiring the cause, he was informed by his daughter that the man had returned to the store and stated that her father had told him to take the library. He wrapped the books, about 400 in all, in a heavy paper and signed a receipt for them in the name of the News Company, per Smith, and took his departure with $50 worth of books.

The Milky Water.

To the Bloomfield Citizen.

[In reply to the question in last week's paper.]

The milky appearance of the water is caused entirely by air, which is in all spring water, and shows in this way after heavy pressure. It will be noticed after fire pressure has been applied which was done last Saturday on account of the fire at East Orange, and the condition may remain in parts of the system for several days.

This condition, we are told occurs in water works, where the supply is from springs, and is favorable, as air makes water pure.

It has been proposed by Prof. Leeds to purify the Newark water by forcing air into the mains.

Yours respectfully,

ORANGE WATER CO.

Temperance and Sabbath Observance.

To the Citizen.

At the meeting at Reform Club Hall, Sunday, July 13th, the subject of Sabbath keeping and the observance of the Sunday Laws was earnestly presented by several speakers.

Mr. Bourne read brief abstracts from the Laws of New Jersey concerning liquor selling: "Ale and Beer," from Sec. 64 of the "Revised Statutes," by which premises in which said articles are sold on Sunday, are "reckoned as disorderly houses" and the law-breakers "punishable by fines, and afterwards by imprisonment."

Also from an "Act to suppress Vice and immorality." That neither shooting, fishing, (except by seine, in certain cases provided for by statute), sporting, hunting, gaming, racing, or frequenting of tipping houses, or indulgence in plays, dancing, singing, fiddling or other music for the sake of merriment, or any playing at foot ball, fives, ninepins, bowls, long bullets or quoits, nor any other kind of playing, sports, pastimes or diversions shall be done, performed, used or practiced within the State of New Jersey on the Christian Sabbath, or first day of the week commonly called Sunday.

—$1 fine for each offence, for the benefit of the township.

"No person shall expose for sale any wares, merchandise, etc., goods, chattels upon the first day, commonly called Sunday"—fine of $2 for each offence.

"Stage driving is forbidden"—$8 for each offence.

"No traveling to or from market, or with cart, wagon etc., for business."

"No profane swearing"—$50, for each offence.

He remarked that the open, constant violation of the law demanded immediate action by those charged with the execution of the laws, and the cooperation of all good citizens. That our American Sabbath should not be changed into the "Continental Sunday."

Mr. Batchelder described the flagrant violations of the laws by the liquor sellers, and those who have no regard for our laws; who make it a day of sport and diversions. Multitudes engage in ball playing and games, not only, but in card playing and gaming right in the woods and groves near the canal and railroad track at all hours of the Sunday.

Not only licensed but unlicensed saloons were selling liquor all day without restraint.

At 3 o'clock this day he had seen young men playing base ball just behind the canal and this had been going on for many weeks past.

Mr. Geo. W. Cook made a very correct and forcible address in which he spoke of the former quiet of the Bloomfield Sabbath contrasted with the present. Now that Montclair and Orange had in great measure closed the liquor dens and were enforcing the Sunday laws the apathy of the citizens of Bloomfield had permitted the liquor drinkers and Sabbath breakers of these places to have full sweep in Bloomfield, so adding to the iniquity of the denizens of our own town. Mr. Cook's impassioned appeal to the churches and the citizens of Bloomfield, to restore the Sabbath, and see that the Sunday laws were observed should be heard by every patriot as well as church member. The good name and material prosperity of the town is concerned as well as the majesty of law and the honor due to Jehovah.

Rev. Mr. Simon's made some timely remarks in which he stated that the Baptist congregation as Christians, and citizens were on the side of the Sabbath, heartily in every way. The subject is to be continued on Sunday 19th inst. at 4 P. M. at Reform Club Hall.

[This above report was received too late for insertion in last week's issue. Eds.]

The first volume of General Grant's Memoirs will be published in December, and the second in March. The first volume contains a portrait of the General, engraved from a daguerrotype, taken in 1843, when he was a brevet Second Lieutenant twenty-one years of age.

It was shown to Mrs. Grant, she said, "That is just the way Ulysses looked when he first came courting me." The book will be published simultaneously in six languages. It may be unnecessary to remind our readers that, though agents are now seeking subscriptions for this work, it will also be obtainable from their bookseller.

A Sojourner's Views.

A sojourner in your village, for a summer, would like to inquire if the days for immediate ringing of a church bell on the Fourth of July are not quite gone by, within such a short distance of New York City.

We remember that in the more remote country villages where a crowd is seldom collected, the night before and the early day of the Fourth are generally selected for drawing together the rougher elements of a community; the door of the little village church is burst open and the bell rung incessantly. But in this more thickly settled community we imagined there was an escape from such a disorder.

It is indeed a pity that with your beautiful park and grand old church, there should come anything that must make all visitors like myself forever avoid a resort where such disturbances are allowed.

Let me suggest through your columns that the attention of those who have the best interests of the place to maintain should be directed to the fact that one church bell rung at half-past four o'clock in the morning for three-fourths of an hour is not calculated to arouse patriotism in the hearts of some of your more quiet abiding citizens, nor in the heart of
